

"AMERICANS" ARE ROUNDLY SCORED

Rev. F. B. Short Blames Party for Slot Machine Evil.

NOVEL REMEDY PROPOSED

LARGE CONGREGATION HEARS REMARKABLE SERMON.

"The 'American' party is responsible for the slot machines being allowed to run, and it cannot hope for the support of purity-loving people at the next election unless it abolishes them at once," declared the Rev. Francis Burgette Short in a stirring address on the slot machine evil at the First Methodist church last evening.

"When the 'Americans' asked for our support last fall they promised that they would suppress gambling in Salt Lake," continued the speaker. "In a way they have done so, but these nefarious devices are still allowed to run, and I for one will not support a party that cannot keep its word."

"I know that this is an unpopular thing to do—to denounce the party now in power," he declared, "but I want to place the blame where it belongs, and it belongs with the 'American' party. The council could easily pass an ordinance making these machines illegal, but that they will not do it, and the chairman of the license committee says that the city needs the money exacted from these machines every month."

Wants More Civic Pride.

Mr. Short deplored the condition which made it necessary for a city to take money from women and gambling device keepers in order to pay its bills and make improvements. He said that for his part he would much rather have fewer improvements and more civic pride.

A novel remedy was suggested. The speaker said that he knew of a man who would willingly pay to the city $25,000 a year for the privilege of having a gambling monopoly here and conducting but one gambling house. This amount would equal the fines from the slot machines and social evil, and the gambling house would be well conducted, no minors being allowed, and would be away from the sight of those who might be influenced by it. He declared that he would prefer to see this done and the slot machines dispensed with if the city really had to have the money.

Judge Diehl's Decision.

Much of the discourse was devoted to the influence over the young which these machines had. The speaker also commented on the decision of Judge Diehl of the police court in declaring the machines "in the line of vice." It was his contention that the case had never been fully presented to Judge Diehl and that under the city ordinance as it stands a conviction could be secured were an attempt made again.

"Even if this is not done, an ordinance can be passed which will obviate the objections of Judge Diehl to the present law," he said.

"The miserable, mean, ignominious duplicity which actuates the 'American' party in collecting this license and allowing these machines to run is so contemptible that I hate to mention it," declared Mr. Short. "Here is a body of men, sworn to do their duty by the people, and yet they allow these machines to run, to the everlasting detriment of the youth of the city, in order that the city may secure a few miserable, dirty dollars for letting men corrupt their youths. Just think of this, friends, and then go to your cottages and protest against this outrage against the decency of this city of the saints."

Commends Newspapers.

The speaker was warm in his commendation of the attitude of the newspapers on the subject and said that he was pleased to know that all the papers, irrespective of party, had taken the matter up.

"The four newspapers in this town, The Herald, the Tribune, the Republican and the Deseret News, have been uniform in their wish to abolish this evil. All of them see the necessity of doing away with this vicious system, and they have urged prohibitive licenses, which seems a very good way to settle the difficulty."

A large congregation heard the sermon, which was a strong denunciation of the "American" party and its attitude toward gambling. The sentiment of the speaker was reflected in the audience, and his words met with general approval.

NEED $5,000 FOR CADETS

Problem Presented by Inability to Get Special Railroad Rate.

BIG CONCERT IS PLANNED

BOYS ALREADY PRACTISING TENT PITCHING.

As the railroads have not been able to give a special rate for the transportation of the Salt Lake High school cadets to San Francisco, owing to the interstate commerce law, the committee in charge of the arrangements for sending the boys to see Admiral Evans and the American fleet was confronted, at a meeting last night at the Commercial club, with another knotty problem. It was discovered that it will cost $15,000 more than was previously estimated to send each boy in the cadet corps. The amount still to be raised is $5,000, instead of $2,500.

But the committee was full of enthusiasm and will work harder than ever today to wipe out the shortage.

As it will be impossible for the members of the committee personally to see all persons who desire to contribute to the fund, it will greatly aid them in their work if contributions are left at the newspaper offices or at the leading business houses.

Concert at Tabernacle.

The committee last night decided to give a concert in the tabernacle for the purpose of swelling the fund. The arrangements for the concert will be in the hands of Fred C. Graham. It will be given on Thursday evening, if the tabernacle can be secured for that night.

Under the will of the cadet corps, the members of the committee in charge of the arrangements will have its hands full up to the moment the train leaves the city.

Special Cars for Boys.

Seven Pullman coaches and two baggage cars have been secured for the westward journey of the high school boys. It is to leave Salt Lake on Saturday morning at 9 o'clock. As the hour of departure is so near, the members of the committee in charge of the arrangements will have its hands full up to the moment the train leaves the city.

Yesterday was a busy day for the cadets. They gathered in the morning on the high school grounds to do some practice work in pitching tents so that when they reach the Presidio military reservation at San Francisco they can acquire themselves creditably in going into camp with the cadets of that city.

Each squad in each company struggled for the honor of putting up a tent in shorter time than it could be done by eager competitors. The record was made by the fifth squad of Company C, under Sergeant Shaffer. Time, 7:20.

Other squads did almost as well. As no time is to be lost in getting together the needed funds for sending the cadets to San Francisco, the boys will be asked to make an effort to add to the amount they have subscribed.

Mormon Church Holds That Spirit Cannot Be Destroyed—An Eternal Truth.

Apostle Orson F. Whitney was the principal speaker at the tabernacle yesterday afternoon. There was a large attendance.

He spoke of the eternal truth that the spirit cannot be destroyed, and that it is a body of men, sworn to do their duty by the people, and yet they allow these machines to run, to the everlasting detriment of the youth of the city, in order that the city may secure a few miserable, dirty dollars for letting men corrupt their youths. Just think of this, friends, and then go to your cottages and protest against this outrage against the decency of this city of the saints."

"Man cannot create spirit, therefore man does not have the power to destroy it. Man cannot destroy anything that he does not have the power to create."

FUNERAL OF GEO. HOLMES.

Services Are Conducted by Modern Woodmen of America.

The body of George Holmes, a member of the Grand Lodge No. 10,671, Modern Woodmen of America, who died Tuesday, was buried in the city cemetery yesterday afternoon. The funeral services were held at the Hall undertaking rooms.

By request of the family, the camp of the Order of the Foresters, and the ritualistic ceremonies were read by Donald McNicol, V. C. The procession was headed by the Fort Douglas band, and two special cars conveyed friends of the deceased from Eagle Gate to the cemetery. Excelsior camp also attended the services in the audience, and the Foresters of both camps appeared in full uniform.

Mr. Holmes leaves to his wife and daughter $2,000 insurance in the order.

Arrangements for the grand ball to be given by the ladies of the United Commercial Travelers' council 81, at the Odessa dancing academy Wednesday evening, April 29, have been practically completed and promise an unusually attractive affair. An invitation to attend is cordially extended to all commercial travelers and their friends, and tickets for the affair may be secured at all of the leading hotels in Salt Lake.

Manager of Commercial Street Messenger Service Says Boys Are Not "Stool Pigeons."

SENTIMENT IS THAT CHIEF EXECUTIVE WAS MISLED BY THE CITY ENGINEER.

KENNEDY MAY SUE CITY BOND ISSUE QUESTION TO COME BEFORE COUNCIL.

According to a sentiment which appears to prevail among both the administration and anti-administration members of the council, Mayor Bransford was misled by the city engineer when he vetoed the appropriation for $9,988 to James Kennedy for pumping water out of the intercepting sewer, and the council may pass the matter over his veto at the session this evening.

In his veto message the mayor declares that this pumping was covered by the contract price, and his decision was arrived at after a consultation with the engineer. As the engineer was one of the committee of the board of public works which turned down the bill before it passed the council, his position can be surmised. Nearly all of the members of the board were in favor of approving the bill and sending it to the council, but they did not desire to turn down the engineer's recommendation.

Thinks City Must Pay.

C. D. Rookledge, one of the members of the board, has made an open statement that the money would have to be paid, and W. J. Halloran and Samuel Barlow are of the same opinion, apparently. Perhaps one of the reasons that actuated the board was the knowledge of the fact that if the bill went to the council with its approval it would not stand so good a show of passage as it did because the council seems to be inclined to look with suspicion on any acts of the board.

The council finance committee approved the bill and in doing so believed that it was saving the city from a big damage suit. The council approved it on the same grounds, but the engineer evidently wished to save himself and the members of the board of works from criticism and turned down the bill.

Blunder of Board.

The controversy grows out of the blunder of the board and the engineer in not providing an outlet for the intercepting sewer. For this reason, while it was being built, the contractor was compelled to pump water out which accumulated in the finished portion, and for which there was no outlet. His bill is far below the actual cost of this work, according to the account kept in the city engineer's office, and the damage and delay caused by its presence to the contractor has not been estimated.

If the bill is passed over the mayor's veto a damage suit may result, and the city will probably be asked to pay about $20,000 instead of $9,988.

The council this evening may also consider the question of setting a date for a bond election. The mayor in his message a week ago urged immediate action on this matter, and the finance committee, it is understood, has a report ready. In all probability final consideration will be postponed one week.

GREEKS OBSERVE EASTER FESTIVAL

Thousands Attend Services in Church and Celebrate Day With Song and Dance.

WILL CONTINUE FOR WEEK SERVICES ARE IMPRESSIVE AND SOLEMN.

Nearly 2,000 Greeks from Utah, Idaho and Nevada are in Salt Lake observing with feast and song the Greek Easter tide. The Greek Catholic church follows the old style calendar, and their method of determining the date of Easter is different than the plan followed by other Christian religions.

The Greek Easter service is decidedly picturesque, yet it is at the same time very impressive. The passion week of the Greeks is probably observed more strictly than that of other Christians and the Lenten fasts are what might be considered harsh and burdensome. The Greeks, however, observe them as a matter of duty without complaint.

Services Are Impressive. The Easter begins with a midnight service in the Greek church. At 11 o'clock on Saturday evening the Greek church at 433 West Fourth South street was filled. Rev. Father Archimandrites Parthenios, Limberopoulos, pastor of the Greek church, presided at the impressive services. There are no seats in the Greek church—the Greeks do not go to church for comfort—yet every inch of standing room was filled throughout the long service by the devout communicants, each of whom held a candle symbolic of the faith and allegorically to light the risen Lord back to earth.

It is the belief of the Greek faith that Christ rose from the dead at midnight, instead of at sunrise on Easter morning. It was just at midnight when the Greek priest turned from the altar, and raising both hands aloft proclaimed the solemn, joyous news that the Lord was risen. In his black flowing robes, his great mitre and with long black hair and beard, the priest certainly appeared as might a disciple of old announcing the joyful tidings to a sorrowing multitude.

For a moment following the announcement by the priest everything was silent. Then the singers began an anthem of thanksgiving and praise, which, however, was quickly lost in the din that followed. Each Greek held a candle, and the church was a large quantity of firecrackers and fireworks. Those who could, immediately after midnight went outside the door and set off the fireworks and blank cartridges and sent out a shout of joy. For several moments the first noise of the celebration was kept up, during which the good father stood motionless in front of his exuberant flock, his hand still raised heavenward.

Will Continue Week. After the celebration had subsided so that there were only intermittent reports from the firecrackers and revolvers of the Greeks, the priest resumed the ceremony of the mass, which lasted until 2 o'clock, the lesser devotees of the religion remaining standing the entire time.

Following the Easter mass the Greeks had another celebration in the church yard, singing Greek songs, dancing native dances until daybreak. Early morning banquets were served in the restaurants of Greek town, with colored Easter eggs and all of the delicacies that they had been denied during the Lenten season.

In the afternoon the following service was held at the Greek church. The celebration of Easter will continue during the entire week.
